NOTES.

The amount which stands against the Farmers' Bank of Alexandria, under the head of "deposites," has been returned by that bank as "deposites and discounts."

Several of the banks have not stated explicitly what amount of their own stock they hold. The Bank of the Metropolis did, during part of the year, hold upwards of 200,000 dollars' worth of its own stock. But, on the 1st of November, 1836, this amount was reduced to 26,000 dollars, and may now be further reduced.
