

PRESIDENT NEEL KASHKARI

Neel Kashkari [cash-CAR-ee] is president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, one of the Fed's 12 regional banks. The Minneapolis Fed serves the public by pursuing a growing economy that works for all of us, and the Bank's district includes Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, northwestern Wisconsin, and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. Neel serves as a member of the Federal Open Market Committee, which sets the nation's monetary policy.

Neel began his career as an aerospace engineer developing technology for NASA space missions. He later held a variety of roles in public service and finance, most notably as assistant secretary of the Treasury during the 2008 financial crisis, where he oversaw the Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP). Neel lives with his wife, two young children, and Newfoundland dog in Orono (Oh-reh-noh), Minnesota.
