- 20 to 25. The several statements and tables, exhibiting the condition and affairs of the banks of the state, organized under the provisions of the general banking law.

In presenting this report it may not be deemed improper for me to accompany the same by some suggestions concerning the financial affairs of our state, particularly such as come within the supervision of the auditor of public accounts. An examination of the statements and exhibits, herewith laid before your honorable body, will show a condition of affairs which, in my judgment, calls for careful consideration, and, perhaps, legislation, on your part. It will be found that on the first of December, 1860, the state treasury was completely drained of revenue; there being not even a single dollar applicable to the payment of the ordinary expenses of the government. It will also be found that the valuation of taxable property, for the past year, is, in amount, so far below the valuation of previous years, that the sum to be realized from taxation, during the next fiscal term of two years, must necessarily fall below the amount required for the ordinary and contingent expenses of the state government, during that time, without a considerable advance in the rate of taxation for revenue purposes.

The statements of assessment for the year 1860 have, as yet, been received from but few of the counties. So far as the same have come to hand, they are found to be, in nearly every instance, diminished in amount, since 1859; and it will also be found that but little more than one-half of the whole number of tax collectors have made full payment of their accounts for tax collected. In view of these things, I can but deem it my duty to point out what, to me, appear to be some of the causes that have produced these effects. Much of this loss of revenue may, doubtless, be attributed to the effects of the financial crisis of 1857 and 1858, and the partial failure of agricultural products in our state, for two or three years, last past; but much more, than from all other causes, the results enumerated have been produced, as I believe, by the manner in which our revenue laws have been executed. It is my belief that an honest and faithful execution of our present assessment and collection laws would furnish ample means for all necessary governmental expenses, and, at the same time, distribute the burden of the same fairly and equally. Yet, I am more and more convinced, the longer I have to do with the supervision of revenue matters, that some means, in addition to those already provided, are needed, to insure such an operation of the law as was contemplated by its framers.

The present method of valuing personal property seems, to my mind, objectionable; and I am of opinion that a change in the law requiring persons listing personal property to make oath to the correctness of the same would largely increase the revenue of the state and counties. A change in the manner of compensating assessors, by which they should receive a per centage on the amount of taxes collected, instead of a per diem allowance, would, in my opinion, insure a much more correct valuation of real property than has ever been obtained under our present law. By uniting the duties of assessor and collector in the person of the same officer, this change could be easily effected.

Several instances have occurred, during my term of office, in which the collector of a county has been defaulter for state taxes, and, after suit has been brought on his bond, has come forward, either before or after judgment had been obtained, and paid off the amount, and at the end of the succeeding year has again been a defaulter, and the amount left to be made out of the property of his securities. I have good reason to believe that payment has been made, in these instances, with money received from the collection of the year succeeding the first default; and it seems but proper that some provision should be made, whereby no collector can be permitted to undertake a second year's collection until he shall produce satisfactory evidence to the county authorities, showing that he has fully accounted for and paid over the taxes of the previous year; and, also, that a collector may be chosen in case of failure of the regular officer to produce such evidence.

The present law concerning forfeited property is found not to operate satisfactorily. In several of the counties, as I have been credibly informed, property owners have entered into combinations to avoid payment of taxes, and have prevented their property from being sold at tax sales, from year to year, and now, in 1860, have, under the operation of the five year provision of the revenue law, defeated the collection of taxes on their property. It seems necessary that some legislation should be had, in reference to a different disposition of forfeited property.

The Southern Bank of Illinois, at Belleville, and Clark's Exchange Bank, at Springfield, have complied with the provisions of the act of 1857, and have withdrawn their securities. Their circulating notes are redeemed by N. H. Ridgely & Co., of Springfield. The time allowed by law for the redemption of notes of the Bank of Belleville, Bank of Hutsonville, Hamilton County Bank, and Rushville Bank, having expired, the balances of their assets, in my hands, have been paid over to the receivers and stockholders of the respective banks, in accordance with the law.

The time allowed for the presentation of the notes of the People's Bank, and Stock Security Bank, for the pro rata dividend declared thereon, has expired, leaving a balance of assets in my hands, arising from lost circulation, sufficient to enable me to declare a second dividend upon the former of six per cent., and upon the latter of seven and three-fourths per cent. This will pay the notes of the People's Bank at par, and those of Stock Security Bank at ninety-six cents to the dollar.

During the past two years the circulation of the banks of the state has largely increased, owing partially to the advancing business necessities of the state, but principally to the fact that its known character for security has obtained for it a much wider circulation, in the adjoining states, than it has heretofore had. And I am satisfied that a rigid execution of our banking laws, together with a few amendments, is all that is necessary to make it acceptable to our people.

The immense amount of books, papers, vouchers, &c., &c., pertaining to an office like this, where all the revenue and banking business of the state is transacted, requires and imperatively demands more room and facilities for the proper transaction of its business, and it is earnestly urged upon the General Assembly to make such provision as the pressing necessities of the case demand.

JESSE K. DUBOIS.
